There were six separations since the February 2023 Trustee meeting. Ms. Norris also noted that there are 56 employees eligible for retirement in the next year.

REPORT FROM THE ADVANCEMENT COMMITTEE

Ralph Womble reported in Kyle Petty's absence. Vice Chancellor for Advancement, Lissy Garrison, shared the following fundraising news during the committee meeting:

- With eight months completed (67% of the year), UNCOSA has already exceeded this year's goal, having raised $9.2M vs. a goal of $8.5M (109% of goal). Projected fundraising for FY23 to total approximately $10.8M – or 127% of our stated goal.
- UNCOSA has already exceeded goals in principal gifts ($1M+) and major gifts ($25-999K). Notable gifts in these categories include $2.2M to fund three years of scholarships for the Posse program, and eight new bequests, ranging in value from $25-993K, with a total face value of $3.7M and discounted booked value of $1.8M. Total planned gifts have grown from 5% of total last year, to between 16-19% so far this year, putting us much closer to the UNC System benchmark goal of 20-30%.
- April 27 and April 28 are designated as Days of Giving. This year there are 30 projects, representing every arts school and other areas throughout the campus to diversify the giving opportunities.
- Going into the Days of Giving, UNCOSA secured $102,000 in challenge-matching gifts.
- Vice Chancellor Garrison discussed pipeline development. This year we have seen new donors from an expansion of our planned giving program and from our new parent philanthropy program. The Advancement team is placing a high priority on continuing to expand our pipeline of donors, especially building toward an expanded major gifts program.
- Going into next year, Advancement will retain its current strategic framework, with goals and priorities set in eight key areas, including fundraising, alumni engagement, pipeline development, events, stewardship, people & organization, EDIB, and philanthropic priorities.

- Vice Chancellor Garrison shared a timeline for our next comprehensive campaign, which will launch publicly in FY27. The detailed timeline is included in the Advancement slide deck.

Cindy Liberty, Executive Director for the Foundation, reported that she met with the Finance Committee on April 20th to review third quarter results. They reviewed the 1st draft of the Foundation/Advancement Budget for FY2023 with a projection through 2030.

The Advancement Committee is taking on new projects including challenge grants for Days of Giving, sponsorships for The Nutcracker, and Giannini Retention and Recruitment.

The Audit Committee has selected “FORVIS” as the new audit firm.

The Foundation Board will meet on Thursday, June 1, and the Foundation Board Social will be held at the Chancellor’s residence following the meeting.

The Semans Art Fund Audited Financial Statements and 990 have been accepted by the Foundation Board.

Claire Machamer, Vice Chancellor for Strategic Communications reported “The Rise to Greatness Campaign” successfully launched with executions across outdoor, social media, Google search and display, and YouTube pre-roll. This campaign will continue to serve UNCSA as it rolls out on campus and throughout all recruitment marketing for the upcoming season.

The UNCSA costume program was named among “Top 10” in the nation for the sixth consecutive year by The Hollywood Reporter.

There were 8,200 prospective student website inquiries since July, which is up 39% YoY. Of those inquiries, around 5,000 are attributed to paid marketing campaigns, up 121% YoY. As reported by Director of Admissions Paul Razza, we are also seeing an increase in applications of around 9% YoY.

Digital Media has adjusted plans for launching the internal app/portal Pathify. The system will now be launched this summer for all students and then be available for faculty and staff use shortly after.

Work on the PBS Series “Breathtaking Performances” has continued. All of the 8 performances featured in the series have been filmed and now the team is completing interviews and post-production. PBS NC has tentatively scheduled the series to run in the Fall 2023 season.

During the UNCSA in NYC trip, Director of Media Relations and Communications Katherine Johnson, arranged multiple meetings with arts deans and national media, including The New York Times, The Hollywood Reporter, The Violin Channel, American Theatre Magazine, IndieWire, and Pointe.

Director of Media Relations and Communications Katherine Johnson will begin on May 18 as Interim. A national search will be launched to fill the position permanently. Mr. Womble and the entire Board of Trustees thanked Claire for the tremendous work she has done to update the marketing profile and website of UNCSA.

REPORT FROM THE ACADEMIC AND STUDENT AFFAIRS COMMITTEE

Greer Cawood, Committee Chair, called on Jack Sargent, incoming Student Body President, who reported in Kayli Kimerer's absence.

Mr. Sargent introduced himself as the incoming Student Body President and acknowledged the outgoing Student Government Association representatives. He thanked them for their hard work and dedication this year.

He expressed the importance of health and wellness and how events around campus, including the fall town hall, helped inform data and needs of students. SGA has worked with the administration to give feedback to get better responses and feedback from students

This year, several SGA members participated with the Association of Student Governments. Goals this year centered around connecting students to resources across campus and collaborating across departments.

Ms. Cawood reported that Andy Paris, Chair of Faculty Council, gave a report summarizing the efforts of the Council throughout the academic year. Faculty Council led many discussions regarding ongoing policy revisions and the impacts of changes for faculty, students, and staff. He reported on the CSI progress that happened with faculty gatherings, noting that the focus of these meetings was health and wellness. He also noted that that Faculty Council is working in with Campus Police to implement new safety protocols such as increased lights.

Faculty Council Leadership and the Provost's Office have met to set the course for next year in the delivery of top-notch curriculum in a responsible and masterful way. Faculty Council thanked the Board for their support of campus initiatives.

Dr. Karen Beres reported on the growth of graduation rates providing data from the Undergraduate Degree Completion Improvement Plan (UDCIP). She explained that for the 2023-2024 academic year, UNCSCA will have faculty going through the contract reappointment process, which is about 20% of our total faculty. She went on to explain that the school is working hard on creating student success initiatives and have implemented an academic early warning process to help support students more efficiently

Last year D&P and Music had large numbers of student concerns but this year Film has had a spike in student concerns. UNCSCA is finishing a pilot of the Academic Student Success program with three students and we hope to have between 20-25 in the fall. This program is to help students learn skills to be successful at UNCSCA.

Laurel Donley, Assistant Dean of Student Affairs, reported that the division has focused on the circle of care for students this year, with an emphasis on health and wellness. There have been some staff shortages in the counseling center, but a grant has been secured to help UNCSCA employ one additional case manager to handle the increasing student demands.

Since the last Board of Trustees meeting, there has been a death by suicide. Student Affairs is continuing to support faculty, staff, and students and has partnered with Atrium to offer group and individual therapy.

Over 300 students participated in the health and wellness survey, which provided a lot of beneficial feedback and data to inform future programs and needs. Student Affairs is in the process of narrowing down the recommendations and policy handbook revisions from the high school consultant report.

UNCSA's Director of Student Conduct is working on redefining how we process and manage cases.

Paul Razza, Director of Admissions, provided a snapshot of the numbers towards the fall headcount goal of 1370. Projections predict that we need 537 new or incoming students, which is lower than expected as we retained students according to the spring census. Submitted applications are up 9%, high school is up 26% (which is reflective of the tuition grant within the system), and graduate applications are down 1%. Admitted applicants are up 10%. Quality is up according to the faculty reviews who note that applicants are better prepared for auditions/interviews and seem to have increased enthusiasm. Administrative processes, such as Chancellor exceptions, are down. Our current strategy is to increase the matriculation rate from admit-to-enrolled. Enrollment commitments and deposits are up 10% - May 1st is National Decision day.

Patrick Sims, Provost, thanked Faculty Council for the hard work they have done this year. He announced that the Provost's Office is planning large organizational changes to calendaring, rank promotion, and in other ways to propel the University forward. Processes are being reviewed to maximize resources, create consistency, and improve efficiency.

Provost Sims reported that the High School is working on reaccreditation this year and emphasized how important it is to understand that UNCSA runs a boarding school in addition to a University, and that it is important to balance the needs of high school students between the ages of 13 and 18.

There are several searches underway, including the Vice Provost of Student Affairs, Director of Institutional Research and Planning, and eighteen faculty positions for next year.

REPORT FROM THE GOVERNANCE COMMITTEE

Anna Folwell, Chair, reported that the Governance Committee reviewed six future vacancies on the Board to be filled July 1, 2023. Two of the vacancies are Legislative appointments and four are Board of Governors (BOG) appointments. Five of the six have paperwork in progress for final selection by the Legislature or BOG. We are close to finalizing the last nomination. The BOG will approve candidates in May. The Legislature will most likely approve candidates in May or June.

Peter Juran, Committee Chair, reported that the Audit, Risk, and Compliance Committee met on April 27, 2023. MOTION: The Audit, Risk, and Compliance Committee moved to approve the 2023 ERM Risk Register as presented. The motion was unanimously approved.

In the area of Information Governance and Security, it was reported that the inaugural security awareness training was conducted February 15 - April 21 with 480 users enrolled in the training and 58% have completed all of the content. The Information Technology (IT) division has contracted with MCNC for virtual Chief Information Security Officer (CISCO) services after the previous CISO stepped down.

Rod Isom, Chief Audit, Risk, and Compliance Officer, reported on Internal Audit activity. Two projects have been completed since the last committee meeting and one project is in progress. The memorandum of understanding between UNCOSA and WSSU for internal audit services has been renewed for three years.

The top risks from the annual risk assessment and the internal audit plan for FY24 were presented. The audit plan was reviewed and approved by the committee.

MOTION: The Audit, Risk, and Compliance Committee moved to approve the FY24 internal audit plan as presented. The motion was unanimously approved.
